Program Description

With today's concern about managing healthcare costs, knowledge and use of current skin care treatments are definite assets. This program will increase the knowledge and skills of the nurse about foot & nail care, home health care, pressure injury, risk factors, proper staging, ostomy care and selection of an appropriate treatment regimen.

TARGET AUDIENCE

- Nurses
- WOC Nurses/Students
- Nurse practitioners
- Student Nurses
- Physicians
- Subspecialty physicians
- Other Health Care Professionals

Objectives

To offer basic wound and ostomy care education to the medical and nursing community at large:

1. Describe the steps to ostomy pouch application.
2. Describe the different types of wounds patients may present with not related to pressure.
3. Discuss the staging of Pressure Injury.
4. Describe the types of product used to treat various wounds.
5. Describe a day in the life of a home health WOC RN.
6. Discuss aspects of foot and nail care.
